The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, THURSDAY, NOV. 7.

The appointment of General E. A. Applegate as Indian agent on the Klamath reservation has given universal satisfaction, says the Klamath Star.

There is one of the finest bodies of timber in Oregon close to Newport on the Siletz reservation. It will be opened for settlement inside of three years.

The Yakima Herald, a democratic paper, says: "It is claimed that four of the democratic members in the legislature will support Walter J. Thompson, of Tacoma."

Editor Brown, of the Moscow Star, was accused of calling seventeen plates of beans at a recent social gathering, but he says it was a case of mistaken identity. It was pie, not beans.

The new house democrats in the first state legislature of Washington have received an addition to their members in the person of Joe Kuhn, who has been elected state representative from Mason county.

Robert A. Miller, secretary of the Southern Oregon state board of agriculture, has been instructed by the board to write up the resources of the counties comprising the district, which will be published by the state printer.

A great irrigation project is under way in Idaho. It is styled the Big Lost Land and Cattle Company. By means of Eastern capital it is proposed to tap the Snake river at St. Mary's, 35 miles from Minidoka, and thereby make fruitful a large area of new arid land.

The mountains which surround Eastern Oregon have received a fresh supply of snow during the past few days, but no snow has fallen in the valleys. The weather is cloudy, and the mountains are reported to be covered with a heavy blanket of white.

The Seattle Journal-Examiner administers the following bit of consolation to its Portland readers: "If the statements assembled at Olympia remember they are the sayings and not the matters of the people, perhaps some good may be expected of an overwhelmingly republican legislature after all."

The Spokane Chronicle objects to prisoners in the penitentiary making grain bags and asks: "Have these convicts broken all the laws needed for roads in that section?" The Walla Walla Union informs the Chronicle that it is necessary to bring some from Spokane Falls for the convicts to break, that grain is considered too costly.

Although the fish commission of Oregon is opposed to the introduction of catfish in any of the streams of the state on the ground that the cat is an enemy of the salmon and other food fishes, the Harney Valley News (Harney, Ore.) states that the catfish is not any other species of the finny tribe introduced in the waters of Harney lake.

The General Wright arrived at Yaguima from Tillamook, and finding a rough bark, Capt. Yaguima took to such advantage that he made a landing without shipping a drop of water on the decks. He is now a firm believer in the good effect oil has on rough waters. It prevents coming and breaking, no matter how high the sea runs.

In speaking of the Oregon territory some fifty years ago Daniel Webster declared that the region was "too far off that it could never be governed by the United States, and a delegate to congress would not reach Washington until a year after the expiration of his term." If he still lived, says the Salem Statesman, he might have been one of the committee of senators now traveling through this region in palace cars.

The Olympia Currier has changed hands. A joint stock company will hereafter publish it, with O. L. White as general manager. It will be a republican morning daily, with a moderate press franchise, and the first issue will be Monday, or as soon thereafter as the material already ordered can arrive. Campaign contributions to hold stock in it, but his duties as surveyor general of the territory take up his personal time.

J. J. Houck, of Gold Hill, hasn't as many thumbs as he used to have. He and A. J. Barlow had a discussion the other day, during which Mr. Houck's thumb was stepped on by Barlow's mouth, and the latter in explanation of his views, bit the thumb off clean. Barlow has been held in $200 bonds to account for the accident before the court, and Houck is having the thumb he thumb carefully attended by a physician.

The state of Oregon, at the last session of the legislature, appropriated the sum of $10,000 for the purpose of building a wagon road from Hinton, to Hinton, to Hinton. That the work was well done the following from the Caldwell (Idaho) Tribune shows: "Those who have been over the road say it is well made and in first class in every way, except the grade on the high points is not wide enough for the freight train to pass. The road brings mineral within twenty miles of the railroad. There are two stage lines running daily."

The harbor improvement at Coos bay is dragging along slowly. Not much of it is visible to the casual visitor, as up to the present time most of the rock has been dumped into deep water, some as deep as twenty feet. The people object to the work, but there is no good reason for this objection, as Coos bay has been very modest in the demand on the public treasury. And it has really never had the notice it deserves. It is a point of extensive commercial importance, and its business is constantly increasing.

The reward of $200, offered for information concerning the whereabouts of the missing E. Frank, of Coos bay, was last seen at Spokane Falls, where his value and trunk now is, has been withdrawn. He had been spending money freely just previous to his disappearance, and was supposed to have been murdered and thrown into the river, but now it is evident that his relatives think there is a motive in his disappearance, as his niece has withdrawn the power of attorney she gave him, and warning all persons against transacting any business whatever with him respecting her property.

Fish Commissioner Reed paid Roseburg an official visit, complaints having been made that the fishery at the dam across the Umpqua was not just as it should be, and that there has been considerable unlawful killing of fish. The fishery was found to be of limited capacity, but sufficient, however, to fill the requirements of the law. On the occasion, the proprietors of the dam they consented to enlarge the fishery. With reference to the killing of fish, Commissioner Reed told the fisherman that it was unlawful to capture fish within 200 feet of the fishway up stream and 500 feet down stream, and that any and all parties found violating this provision of the statutes may expect vigorous prosecution.

An Example for All Men. Beaton Traveler. Beaton Traveler, of Kansas, always falls on his feet. When he returns from office, as he does several times, he steps into the nearest plucking shed and goes to work as he has made out a report. Pretty soon he steps up or down and a moment later he is at the office, where he is not a moment later for to go to his office, and
